Every day's a fun day in Festival Country.

Festival Country. It starts with the mighty roar of Niagara. It stretches out along the picturesque shores of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. It reaches north through the most beautiful rolling farmlands in North America. And it's dotted with bustling towns and cities full of friendly, smiling people.

Festival Country. It's the Niagara and mid-western area of Ontario. Where festivals and fairs, celebrations and carnivals are weekly happenings.

Festival Country. Aptly named. Superbly located. With thousands of miles of well-paved highways and twisting country roads and lanes. Hundreds of comfortable hotels and motels. Hundreds of good restaurants. And a million and a half people waiting to welcome you.

There's more to see in

CITY OF ST. CATHARINES, CENTENNIAL (1876-1976)

"Get Involved With A Grand Old Lady"

A BRIEF HISTORICAL SKETCH
(by Francis J. Petrie, Regional Historian)

St. Catharines is the largest and most populous city in the Regional Municipality of Niagara. It officially obtained city status on May 1st, 1876 and it is subsequently proudly celebrating its Centennial in a year-long series of events. During these hundred years, the population of St. Catharines has grown from a little over 1,200 to 117,000, and the city's extent in size and growth in prosperity has been equally as great. But St. Catharines' proud history goes back much further than 1876. In fact, it goes back almost a century earlier, to the early 1780's when two United Empire Loyalist settlers — John Hainer and Jacob Dittrick — arrived to carve a new homestead for their respective families, shortly after the close of the American Revolution. Descendants of these two families still reside in St. Catharines today and two of this City's streets are appropriately named in their honour. Being located on the Twelve Mile Creek, where it was crossed originally by an Indian trail going westward across the peninsula, below the Niagara Escarpment, St. Catharines soon became the main stopping place on the early stage coach route from York (Toronto) and Queenston and was first named "The Twelve" because of the 12 Mile Creek and then Shipman's Corner's, after Paul Shipman who ran an immensely popular early pioneer tavern here. In fact, St. Paul Street, St. Catharine's main traffic artery is so named in his honour. By the early 1800's, the major landowner in St. Catharines was The Honourable Robert Hamilton, the recognized founder of Queenston, and the father of George Hamilton, after whom Hamilton, Ontario received its name. The name "St. Catharines" was then given to the settlement on the Twelve in honour of Robert Hamilton's wife, Catharine. At the close of the War of 1812-1814, St. Catharines grew in importance as a mill town and a mineral spring's health spa, but through the untiring efforts of William Hamilton Merritt, one of the place's more prominent mill owner's, it soon sprung into prime importance as a shipping and ship building centre with the completion of Merritts' dream, the Welland Canal, which opened in late November 1829, after five years of construction. In all, there have been four Welland Canals — all larger, deeper, and more improved than their predecessors, and St. Catharines growth and prosperity has been closely linked to each one of them. From a village in 1826 with a population of but 600 people, St. Catharines became a town in 1845, numbering 2,354 inhabitants. In 1829, it erected its celebrated Grantham Academy, or school, which still stands today and is still in use as an educational centre, under the name of the Robertson Public School on Church Street. This is only one of several venerable St. Catharines landmarks going back a century and half or more in its history. Another is its Lincoln County Building, which first served as the Town Hall upon its construction in 1848 and then became the County Building after St. Catharines became the County Seat in 1862. In 1864, the James Street addition was constructed on its original back section, resulting in the building of today. St. Catharines has many historic old churches, of all religious denominations, with several of them dating back a century and more in age, which are well worth a visit from tourist and townsfolk alike. Several of these historic places of worship are easily pin-pointed by their lofty spires, rising proudly over the well-treed city itself. St. Catharines has the finest shopping centre in the entire peninsula and this, with its equally well-stocked stores in the downtown area and suburban smaller shopping malls, can provide the most discriminant shopper with anything he (or she) desires from any corner of the world.

The St. Catharines Centennial Committee has arranged numerous events throughout the year. A 96 page illustrated (pictorial) history of the City's past 100 years has been published for visitors. 24 hour telephone service listing events — (416) 685-9966.

CONTACT: St. Catharines Centennial Committee, Box 1976, 60 James St., St. Catharines, Ont. (416) 688-5500.

Festival Country

Festival Country. Come in winter when the air is crisp and the countryside looks like an idyllic Christmas card scene. Come in spring when the cherry and peach trees are in blossom and the Canada Geese are returning home. Come in summer when the days are long and warm and lazy. Come in autumn when the crops are being harvested and the colours of the maple trees outshine the brightest of rainbows.

Festival Country. Come for a weekend. Better still, come for a week or two.

Festival Country. Where every day's a fun day, and you might never want to go home.

Festival Country. When we say "every day's a fun day in Festival Country", we mean it.

Festival Country. Throughout the year, throughout the eight regional municipalities and counties that make up Festival Country, there are festivals and fairs, carnivals and celebrations that will thrill and delight, inform and amuse the whole family.
